Partnership allows users to make e-commerce purchases straight from their bank accounts

San Francisco, CA (PRWEB) December 08, 2011

Paymentwall, the leading global payments platform provider has partnered with micropayment solution provider Mazooma, a real-time online banking system that allows users to make e-commerce purchases in the U.S straight from their bank accounts.

With this partnership, companies using Paymentwall's digital payment platform can give their users the option to pay for digital transactions with Mazooma's payment solution. Mazooma allows users to pay straight from their bank account in a safe, secure, easy to use system.

"Paymentwall is always proud to partner with a new payment solution that emphasizes ease and security for the user. We look forward to working with Mazooma and continuing to deliver quality options to our users in the United States," says Benoit Boisset, Payment Solutions Project Manager for Paymentwall.

Mazooma's service will be integrated straight into Paymentwall's 2-click-payment system, where users can choose Mazooma to pay for their transaction, bypassing having to enter their credit card information.

"We are excited to integrate with Paymentwall to help support the next generation global digital payment system," said Wilson Lee, president of Mazooma Inc. "Our digital market focus in the U.S. complements the efforts of Paymentwall, enabling them to accelerate growth and expansion in a critical market," added Lee.
